My favourite meal: kottu roti

My favourite meal is chicken kottu. It's a famous Sri Lankan street food and you can hear the sound of it from far away: the cook chops it on a hot iron plate with two metal blades. Clack, clack, clack!

To make kottu, you need some godamba roti, some chicken curry, a lot of vegetables (cabbage, carrots, leeks and onions), two eggs and some spices. You cut the roti into small pieces and fry everything together.

I usually eat kottu on Friday nights with my friends at a small shop near the bus stand. One plate costs about 1,200 rupees. It is hot, spicy and delicious.

In Korea I want to try bibimbap. It is rice with vegetables, meat, an egg and red pepper paste. I think I will love it!

5 Plan

- What is your favourite meal? What is it like?
- What do you need to make it? (use some, a lot of, two...)
- When, where and with who do you eat it? How much does it cost?
- A Korean food you want to try

Our first weekend in Korea, by Hiruni

Last Friday evening our teacher asked us, "What are your plans for the weekend?" We didn't have any plans, so we decided to explore.

On Saturday morning I washed my clothes and tidied my room. Then my roommate Ji-eun and I walked to the river. We stayed there for two hours. We watched people on bicycles, and an old man played the flute under a bridge. It was beautiful.

In the afternoon we visited a traditional market. We tried tteokbokki (spicy rice cakes) and hotteok (a sweet pancake). I liked the hotteok best. Ji-eun laughed because I asked for "not spicy" food in Korean and the woman smiled and added more chilli!

On Sunday it rained all day, so we stayed in the dormitory. I cooked lunch for six students: rice and dhal. They loved it! In the evening I chatted with my parents on video and I studied Korean for an hour.

It was a quiet weekend, but I learned a lot. Next weekend we want to travel to Busan by train.

Two school systems

In Sri Lanka, children start school at five. They take the O/L exams at about sixteen and the A/L exams at about nineteen. A/L results are very important because they decide who can go to a state university. Many students go to tuition classes in the evenings and at weekends.

In South Korea, children also start school young, and secondary school students study very hard. Many students go to private academies called hagwon after school and sometimes study until ten or eleven at night. At the end of high school, students take a big exam called the Suneung. On the day of the Suneung, planes stop flying during the listening test so that it is quiet!

At Korean universities, the year has two semesters: spring (March to June) and autumn (September to December). Students choose a major, for example engineering or nursing. They go to lectures, write assignments and take mid-term and final exams. Attendance is important: if you miss too many classes, you can fail the course.

International students on scholarships usually study Korean for one year first. They need TOPIK level 3 or higher before they start their degree. Universities also have clubs, called dongari, for sports, music, dance and volunteering. They are a great way to make Korean friends.

My diary: Wednesday

Wednesday 11 November

Today was a long day. In the morning I was in class from 8:30 to 12:15. The English lesson was about the past and it was easy. The Korean lesson was hard because there were a lot of new words.

At lunch I was very hungry. The rice and curry were good, but there wasn't any dessert!

The IT lab in the afternoon was fun. My score on the listening quiz was 8 out of 10. My friend Pasindu wasn't happy because his score was 5.

Last night I was on the phone with my mother for an hour. She was worried about the cold in Korea. Tonight I am tired but happy.

5 Your diary

Write a diary entry about yesterday (80 to 100 words). Use was / were at least 6 times and 3 time expressions. Include how you felt.

6 Find someone who...

Ask: "Were you... ?" Write a name.

- Where were you at 7? at 8? at 9?

2 Read Nimal's message

Saturday in Seoul (a message to my cousin)

Hi Kasun,

I'm writing this on the subway right now! It's Saturday and I'm going to Hongdae with two friends from my dormitory. Let me tell you about my week.

My room is small but nice. There is a bed, a desk and a big window. There aren't any curtains yet, so the sun wakes me up at six! The kitchen is on the first floor and we share it with twenty students.

On Wednesday I went to the supermarket opposite the subway station. I wanted some vegetables, but there weren't any green chillies! I bought a bag of rice, some eggs and a bottle of soy sauce. Rice is expensive here: 10 kg is about 35,000 won.

At the moment I'm learning to cook Korean food. My Korean friend Jisoo is teaching me. Yesterday we made kimchi fried rice. It was spicy but not as spicy as my mother's curry!

Directions to my dormitory, for when you visit: come out of exit 3 of the subway station, go straight on for 200 metres, then turn left at the bank. The dormitory is the tall white building between the bank and the park.

Write soon!
Nimal
